

ABSTRACT

Clothes hanger structure comprising two arms, designed to provide a support for a garment, and a hook provided with a stem fixed at the centre line of the hanger. The stem is provided with a portion that can engage to a variable depth in a seat provided at the centre line of the structure, thus permitting at least two fixing positions, one extended and one retracted. This structure permits use of the clothes hanger both during manufacture of the garment and in the domestic environment.